SCHOOL COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

---

The following report is respectfully submitted.

In presenting the report of the schools for the past year, we deem it proper to say that the desire and aim of your committee has been to state facts, as they have been apparent, rather than to please, praise, flatter or censure. In some cases much might have been said in praise, in other cases, perhaps, something said in the opposite direction would not have been misdirected. We prefer rather that facts should speak for themselves.

It has been a year of general prosperity. No deaths have occurred in any of the schools in town, a blessing which ought to call forth the gratitude of all.

General harmony has prevailed. Some few slight elements of discord have been observed, but we are glad to say they have been amicably, and, we trust, finally adjusted, without the interposition of your committee.

In some of the districts sickness has prevented that regularity of attendance so essential to the success of the scholar, and of such importance to the work and success of the teacher. The efforts put forth, and the work performed, both on the part of teachers and scholars, we are glad to report as generally good, and, in some cases, highly commendable. As we can do better justice to all concerned in a report by districts, than in a more general one, we invite your attention to the following report by districts.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

Prudential Committee, George Wilson.

Teacher, both terms, Hannah E. Hardy.

This school has enjoyed two prosperous sessions of ten weeks each. Number of scholars first term twenty. Second term eighteen. The average attendance both terms was good. The regular prescribed studies were pursued with the exception of history.

Beside the regular branches taught, classes were formed in botany, pencil drawing, English synonyms, algebra and geology. The examinations were highly commendable. Miss Hardy has made object teaching one good feature of her work as an instructress, with manifest good results. She has had a large experience as a teacher, has taught four or five previous terms in this district. We can say with pleasure that good progress has attended the efforts in the school during both terms. At the examination we were shown some very good specimens of pencil drawing, performed by a class in that branch of study. Some attention was paid to instruction in vocal music; also, during the winter term, to the practice of gymnastics. The school-house is hardly what it should be, though it may be considered passable. Money expended in repairs, or, what is better, in building a new house, would be well expended. The school has a scanty supply of black-board, no maps or charts, or illustrative apparatus of any kind. The district ought to supply these deficiencies.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

Prudential Committee, Joseph Pollard.

Teacher, both terms, Eliza A. Thomas.

Miss Thomas has been engaged as a teacher in this district seven terms—a fact in itself commendable of her ability and success as a teacher. Her report shows her to have had a longer experience in teaching than any one employed the past year in the town. Under her faithful efforts the school has enjoyed a marked measure of prosperity. A general good interest has pervaded the entire school. The attendance during the first term was sixteen. The second term numbered twenty-five with an average attendance of eighteen and two-thirds. Sickness among the scholars prevented regular attendance during the last half of the winter term. Beside the usual studies, physiology and algebra were taught. There being no maps or charts belonging to the school, contributions in money were solicited from the people of the district, and the result was that fourteen dollars were contributed, with which amount “Warren’s Geog. Charts, ($9.00), and Webster’s Na. Dictionary, ($5.00), were purchased. They have proved to be valuable additions to the school. It is to be hoped that other districts will follow the example of No. 2 in this matter. The examinations were excellent. The school building is in good repair, and is very pleasantly located.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

Prudential Committee, Daniel Gage.

Teacher, both terms, Sarah E. Walker.

This school has been necessarily small, numbering only 11 each term. The first term numbered seven weeks, the second twelve weeks. Only the common branches were pursued, grammar excepted. The progress made during the year may be considered fair. More could have been done in the simple elementary departments of study. The examinations, while in many respects commendable, did not show that thoroughness in scholarship that was desirable. The attendance was good. Four were reported the first term as having attended each thirty-five days. Only three instances of tardiness were reported. But one school has excelled this one in this matter. The school has no maps or charts, a deficiency that ought to be remedied. The school building is much in need of thorough repairs.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

Prudential Committee, Mark Batchelder.

Teacher, first term, Abbie M. Bigelow.

This district has taken the lead in its number of scholars, the statistical table showing an attendance of thirty-four the first term, seven more than any other district. Under the instructions of Miss Bigelow, the school enjoyed a prosperous session of twelve weeks. Miss Bigelow has taught for several years, though never before in this district. A marked interest was observable in the school, and the examination at the close of the term gave evidence of well-directed effort on the part of the school.

The second term Miss Lottie E. Harris was employed as teacher. Length of term twelve weeks. Thirty-seven scholars were reported, an increase of three over the first term. The attendance during the winter term was good. It averaged twenty-nine, one more than the first term. Six of the scholars are reported as having attended each fifty-nine days out of sixty. The usual studies were pursued with the addition of algebra. The interest in the school throughout the term was good. The examination was excellent, a credit to the school. A large number of visitors were present. This district has an excellent school-house in a good state of repair. New blinds were added to it in the spring, at a cost of about thirty dollars, improving it much in appearance. There is enough of district spirit here, to furnish the school with good maps, or charts, a globe, and several good books of reference, all of which are much needed, in that they would benefit the scholars, and at the same time make the work of teaching much more pleasant and easy. This school has had the reputation of being a somewhat difficult school to keep. It is to be hoped, however, that the success and prosperity of the school for the past year will win for it in future a better reputation.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

Prudential Committee, George Haselton.

Teacher, first term, Susan M. Smith.

Owing to the fact of the school-house being burnt last year, the school was held in the same place as before, no better place being obtainable. Twenty-seven scholars were reported with an average attendance of twenty-five. Length of school ten weeks. Beside the regular branches, geology, algebra and geometry were taught. We think the efforts made in school, and the work accomplished, were commendable. Miss Smith was a teacher of considerable experience, she has taught in the same district three previous terms. The attendance was good. Eight are reported as having attended sixty days each. The examination was highly commendable.

Before the winter term commenced a new school-house was built at a cost of about eight hundred dollars. Here the second term commenced under the labors of Miss Carrie A. Smith. Length of second term ten weeks. The attendance was less than the first term, numbering only eighteen. The progress made this term was hardly as good as the first. We failed to notice the enthusiasm on the part of the school that was desired. The examination, though by no means a failure, was hardly what we expected, yet some of the scholars showed the fruits of well directed effort on their part. This school, like the rest, is entirely destitute of maps, and all other illustrative apparatus, a deficiency that ought not to be allowed to be reported again. It would be far better to shorten the term one half, and with the money saved furnish the school with all it needs in this direction, than to allow the school to suffer for the want of such furnishing. This will apply to all other districts as well.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

Prudential Committee, Otis Marsh.

Teacher, first term, Helen A. Cummings.

Twenty-five scholars were reported with an average attendance of twenty-one and three-fourths. Philosophy and algebra were taught in addition to the regular branches. The examination indicated fair progress. Seven of the pupils were reported "not absent one-half day." The order and deportment of the school were good. Miss Cummings has had some experience as a teacher, though this was her first term in the district.

Miss Ellie A. Gilchrist was chosen teacher the second term. Twenty-seven scholars were reported. The usual studies were taught, with the addition of philosophy and physiology. Good efforts toward progress were made, with fair results. This school labors under the same difficulty that has been mentioned of others, it has no maps or charts, and a very scanty supply of blackboard. In these directions great improvements ought to be made. The examination, though we were not able to be present, was, as we are informed, commendable.

The school building is a good one, in good repair.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

Prudential Committee, George Trow.

Teacher, first term, Emma F. Gilchrist.

Length of the term twelve weeks. Eighteen scholars were reported. There was considerable, and, we think, unnecessary irregularity in attendance. Sixty-three instances of tardiness were reported, which, for a school numbering eighteen scholars, is certainly not commendable. Miss Gilchrist here had her first experience as a teacher. No extra studies were pursued. Fair progress was discernible during the term. The examination was in some respects praiseworthy. Money could well be expended in repairs. This school has no map. The supply of blackboard is wholly insufficient.

The second term opened under the direction of Miss Mary E. Anderson. Sixteen scholars were in attendance. Quite a good interest prevailed in the school. The usual studies were pursued. Considerable tardiness was reported, with some irregularity of attendance. In other particulars we think the school might be reported as prosperous. Miss Anderson is an experienced teacher. She has taught in the district before. At the time of writing this report (March 1st), the winter term has not closed,—will close March 7th.

DISTRICT NO. 8.

Prudential Committee, Tolford D. Melvin.

Teacher, both terms, Lucinda T. Carlton.

This district was thrown into a state of considerable embarrassment by the burning of its school house on the night of April 18. It was supposed to be the work of an incendiary. Through the efforts of the Prudential Committee, a room in the unoccupied house owned by him, was fitted up as comfortably as circumstances would allow. Settees were placed in the room and such other furniture as was needed, so that although a better place would have been more desirable, yet it was the best that could be obtained. As it was, it was comfortable. Twenty scholars were in attendance the first term. Length of the term twelve weeks. Miss Carlton, though laboring under difficulties incident upon the deprivation of a school building, and the embarrassment in the district in consequence of it, nevertheless went bravely at her work and kept a good school, as the examination abundantly showed. During the interval between the close of the first and beginning of the second term, a new school house was built, at a cost of seven hundred and fifty dollars. It is neat, commodious, and comfortable. Miss Carlton was re-engaged as a teacher, and here, in its new, and much more pleasant quarters, the second term opened finely with an attendance of twenty-five scholars, five more than the first term. The school enjoyed a prosperous session of twelve weeks. Beside the regular branches, algebra was taught. Visible progress was made during the term. The examination spoke well for the entire school. As a teacher Miss Carlton was persevering, efficient, and well calculated for her work.

Mr. Melvin, the Prudential Committee, certainly deserves praise for the promptness and fidelity with which he has met and overcome the difficulties he was obliged to contend with in order that the district might not be deprived of its school privileges. Well directed energy is always praiseworthy. Maps and a school dictionary would be valuable additions to the school.

DISTRICT NO. 9.

Prudential Committee, B. H. Kidder.

Teacher, both terms, Mary A. Bowers.

The first term was short, only eight weeks. Thirteen scholars were reported. The ordinary branches were pursued with the addition of philosophy. A marked ambition to improve was apparent on the part of some of the pupils. Fair progress was made during the term. The examination was commendable.

The second term was only ten weeks in length. We think increased effort in the school was discernable. Fifteen scholars attended. An average attendance of a fraction over fourteen was reported. The examination spoke well for both teacher and scholars. Miss Bowers is a competent teacher of considerable experience.

The school building is much in need of repairs, yet nothing has been expended in this direction. The out-building needs to be replaced by a new one. No maps or other apparatus belong to the school.

DISTRICT NO. 10.

Prudential Committee, Asa G. Hill.

Teacher, first term, Miss Emma Greeley.

The school in this district has been small. There seems to be a scarcity of children. Only seven attended the first term, five boys and two girls. The oldest scholar was a little over ten years of age. Of course where so few scholars attended, and they so young, great things cannot be expected, yet it is presumed that as good progress was made here as could be expected. Miss Greeley here had her first experience in teaching. She was well qualified for the work in every respect, save in that thoroughness and efficiency which experience alone will give. If she continues in the work we make no doubt of her success. Length of school ten weeks.

Miss Eliza Thomas was employed the second term. The attendance was larger than the first term, numbering twelve. Good progress was made this term. We were impressed with the orderly deportment of the scholars. The examination was satisfactory. Miss Thomas has had some experience as a teacher and bids fair to succeed.

In the foregoing report we have aimed to give, what we deemed to be the general features of interest pertaining to the schools. More might have been said in many cases, but had we gone more into particulars, the report, long enough already, would have been unnecessarily lengthened. The appended statistical table will give numerical facts not stated in the foregoing report.

CHARLES A. CRESSY,
